That brings me to my third point. Many observers, in which I include myself, are sceptical that the planned operations of Great British Energy are, in reality, likely to achieve what they purport. They are unlikely to fulfil either of the objectives in my amendment. After all, subsidies to renewables already stand at about £12 billion a year.

The number of renewable energy schemes, including battery storage, in Kintore has raised concerns the Aberdeenshire town is being "streamrolled into an industrial zone".
