

Each energy storage unit has a capacity of 50KW and can store 100KWh of electricity, capable of continuous charging/discharging for 2 hours at full power. Compared to lithium-ion energy storage, it has better environmental adaptability and lower maintenance costs, with an energy conversion efficiency of over 90%.

Constructed by China Southern Power Grid's Guangxi branch, this station is only the first phase of a larger 100-MWh project. When fully operational, this initiative is expected to annually supply 73 million kWh of clean power, adequate to meet the needs of 35,000 households, while simultaneously reducing carbon emissions by 50,000 tons.

The sodium-ion battery energy storage station in Nanning, in the Guangxi autonomous region in southern China, has an initial storage capacity of 10 megawatt hours (MWh) and is expected to...
